Headless CMS 103 – Digital and Content Maturity

Content manager

Information architect

While enterprises have managed to create great content for a personalized user experience, they often spend a lot of time and money in creating the same type of content again and again, duplicating efforts, and repeating their processes. All this because of the lack of a mature approach to manage content.

Find out how to avoid this by looking into the digital and content maturity of your team. You'll also learn the basics of maturity self-assessment.

Content Strategy 101 for Partners

Information architect

Kontent partner

As headless CMS becomes an answer to mainly the technological challenges, such as more channels, CaaS is the answer to content challenges. Because content is no longer about long marketing or technical communication ending up in PDFs.

However, enterprises often don't know where to start and how to adapt to these changes. The key point here is to establish a good content strategy—from content operations to content governance and content marketing.
